They represent a group and are generally used in the singular form and followed by a verb in the singular. Sometimes, however, they can be in the singular followed by a verb in the plural, in order to insist on the individuals in the group rather than on the group as a whole; in this case, the pronoun would be 'they'.

Examples:

All of the staff were very polite. They were also helpful.

The audience don't seem to enjoy themselves.

My family are not coming this year.
